Fundamentals of a Team Member

This workshop is for you if you want to turn your ordinary team into an extraordinary one.

The one day session highlights the three key phases of being an excellent team member: Mindset, Action and Leadership.

It focuses on the actual members and how they can individually contribute to the collective effectiveness of the whole team. Many of these principles are derived from high performing sales teams and military special forces teams.

Frontline workers, volunteers and team leaders benefit from this principled approach to teamwork that is the first building block on the path to leadership excellence.

Participants will learn the qualities of an effective team member, how to communicate ideas effectively, problem solving and managing risk.

The workshop is interactive and facilitated with activities for learning.

Facilitator: Biren Bandara, CEO and Founder of Leader School Inc., honed his skills over a 15 year career in the Canadian Armed Forces as a military leader, and during the growth of his financial brokerage that spanned three provinces. He founded the Leader School to help up and coming leaders develop their leadership skills, attributes and abilities.
