I lived in foster homes and was adopted into a dysfunctional family when I was young. Then my dad died and I moved out, but I experienced so much abuse, neglect and trauma before I was 18 that I ended up being admitted to the hospital's mental health unit. When I got out I had no place to stay. I ended up at a young women's shelter and now I live in transitional housing and volunteer with a mental health association. I'm applying to a social work program. Mental health is a day-to-day process and everyone deserves to live a happy life.

As kids, we can't always control what happens to us, but when you decide you're ready, there are people who want to help.

Call them at 211.

It's free. 24 hrs/day

My home wasn't a positive place and I didn't feel safe. When I got kicked out I had no options so I couch surfed for a while. I knew I had to get away from my friends. My high school social worker told me about the shelter.

After staying there a couple of months I got my own apartment style room. The youth workers are down the hall if I need them and it's good because I'm still trying to cope with my previous home life and depression and anxiety. I have a job now and I'm learning skills to live independently.
